

TOURISM

Children get protection code

Three days ahead of the World Cup kick-off local tourist organisations, together with several leading hotel groups and car hire companies, have signed a child protection code of conduct. The international Tourism Child Protection Code of Conduct, aimed at preventing the commercial sexual exploitation of children and linked to a wider national campaign to protect children during the World Cup, was launched in Johannesburg yesterday by Fair Trade in Tourism South Africa. – Sapa

