The Mehlodng Trail highlights the rich and diverse natural and cultural heritage of a rural area in the little-explored southern Drakensberg, where the Eastern Cape, Kwazulu Natal and Lesotho intersect. The town of Matatiele serves as a gateway to this eco-adventure experience.

The trail traverses through spectacular mountainous foothills and rural villages, taking in visits to undocumented rock-art, sparkling streams, indigenous trees, medicinal plants, craft projects, traditional initiation cave sites, and sometimes the local chiefs.

The trail covers 4 days, with 4 overnight stops at simple but comfortable lodges constructed by local people with traditional designs and materials. A local guide accompanies all and provides information on the sights, attractions, local customs and language.

The Trail is wholly community owned and supports the Matatiele community through employment, procurement and social investment activities.
